

WILFRED HEARST IN EUROPE AS RESULT OF WAR, SAYS

Statesmen and Veterans Greet Hearst as Patriotic American

New York, Sept. 16 (US)—William Randolph Hearst, returning yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Europa after a tour of Europe, was greeted by a party of friends and admirers in New York bay.

The welcome was inspired by the action of the French government in excluding the publisher from France because of his exposure of the secret Anglo-French treaty.

Members of the welcoming delegation left the Battery in the excursion steamer Hook Mountain for Manhattan. There a senatorial committee headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner boarded the Europa and, to the strains of "Hail, Sweet Home," by the 22nd Regiment Band, formally welcomed the publisher.

Connelly Expresses War Vets' Thanks for Hearst Fight

Congressman William P. Connelly of Massachusetts, who served as color sergeant of the bandfighting 26th Division in France, declared at the reception to William Randolph Hearst in New York:

"Mr. Hearst, we know how you fought for us on the veterans' bonus and in other veterans' relief legislation. I speak the thoughts of every ex-serviceman here when I thank you for your patriotic fight against the League of Nations, against the World Court and for real Americanism, first, last and all the time."

WELCOMES GO ABOARD

Through the courtesy of the federal government, which allowed the senatorial committee to board the Europa at quarantine, Mr. Hearst was permitted to disembark there on the excursion steamer.

Members of the welcoming delegation left the Battery in the excursion steamer Hook Mountain for Manhattan. There a senatorial committee headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner boarded the Europa and, to the strains of "Hail, Sweet Home," by the 22nd Regiment Band, formally welcomed the publisher.

Other addresses were made aboard the excursion steamer, on which several hundred persons, with senators, congressmen and veterans of the World War predominating.

Mr. Hearst, who had issued a formal statement aboard the liner, responded to the warm remarks of welcome aboard the excursion boat.

"GOOD TO BE FREE"

"It is good to be home. It is good to be free.

Freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of the press are such usual and ordinary things in this free country, that we Americans little appreciate them. In fact, we hardly think of them.

They are the soul of democracy, the very life of liberty."

He went on to say that he was proud to have been a part of the war effort and that he was glad to be back in America.

He said that he was glad to be back in America and that he was proud to have been a part of the war effort.

THE HONORABLE

"Liberty and democracy are our familiars in this country. They walk together hand in hand through the length and breadth of the land. They march true, serene and unafraid.

They are the life of this republic, who have reason to be grateful that they are still with us. The most recent victory should be the journalist's. They are allowed to tell the truth here, and in fact, are not very highly esteemed if they tell anything else.

"My advice to independent journalists who contemplate leaving America is to remain in this free country.

"This is the place to exercise independence. This is the place to enjoy liberty. This is the place to have freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of the press."

FRASE AD TO VETS

Speakers for the World War veterans praised Mr. Hearst for his support of veterans' relief measures. His fight against foreign entanglements and his action in securing and printing the secret document relating to the Anglo-French naval agreement.

In addition to Senator Wagner, U. S. Senator Hamilton Kean, of New Jersey; Surgeon John J. O'Brien and Congressman Florio La Guardia were among those who greeted Mr. Hearst.

Others who made welcoming remarks were Congressman William P. Connelly, Mr. Black, Jr., who also spoke for the veterans' cause, and Congressman Robert F. Wagner.

Other speakers were Congressman Guy Carleton, of Pennsylvania; Congressman Donald A. Davidson, of the District of Columbia; and Daniel J. Manning, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A radiogram from Paul C. Wolman, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Wolman's associates, had promised Mr. Hearst a cordial welcome. The radiogram read:

"You will be greeted upon arrival."

Hearst Sees Action of France in Ousting Him as Tribute to Loyalty of His Papers

William Randolph Hearst, upon his return yesterday from Europe, gave out the following statement dealing with his recent exclusion from France for the part he played in securing and publishing the secret Anglo-French naval document:

I have said that I did not complain of my exclusion from France.

I think I should say instead that there is no distinction in my sixty-seven years which has given me more genuine gratification.

Moreover, I hope and believe that this distinction is one that I have actually deserved.

For nearly fifty years I have been active in journalism. I take the obligations of my profession very seriously. I think a newspaper owes a great debt to the public, and that the newspaper's first duty is to keep its public fully and accurately informed about all important matters which affect the public safety and welfare.

There is a lot of trivial news which must perforce be printed; but the vital obligation of a newspaper is to print the important news, and print it without political bias or personal prejudice.

This I have always tried to do, and the action of France in my case is, I consider, merely conspicuous recognition by a great nation of the honorable fact that I have done my full duty to my own people and to my chosen profession.

The critical situation in Europe today does intimately concern the best interests of our people.

We have been drawn into European intrigues and embroilments once. I do not believe that we want to be so involved again. Therefore, whatever I learn abroad which affects the peace and safety, or any essential interest of the United States of America, I have printed and intend to print whether European Governments like it or not.

I owe no allegiance and recognize no responsibility to foreign governments, and will naturally submit to no undue influence or control by them.

If you ask, "Do foreign governments attempt to influence American newspapers?" the answer is, "They do."

France has tried persistently to seduce the American press, and her most effective means of seduction has been the widespread distribution of the little red ribbon of the Legion of Honor.

Many American newspapermen have been caught by this little red ribbon as gullibly as bullfrogs are hooked by a bit of red flannel, but I have never allowed any members of my organization to accept official decorations from any foreign nation, or to put themselves or my papers under obligations to any foreign government.

Indeed, I think Congress should forbid the wearing of foreign decorations by American citizens, except military decorations honorably won in war.

If our bourgeois aristocracy wants some recognition of achievements not sufficiently conspicuous to be known without advertisement, let Congress create a Right Royal Brotherhood of Super-Americans, and confer BLUE ribbons like the prizes at a horse show, and so keep American loyalty at home.

The great Napoleon, who devised the Legion of Honor, knew human weakness, and recognized the irrepressible insinuation of the citizens of a republic to covet the titles and insignia their democracy teaches them to disdain.

All men are created equal in one respect at least, and that is in their desire to be unequal. France has played upon this human vanity to such an extent that in any crowd abroad it is always possible to recognize the Americans by their French decorations.

I know what France expects in return for her little red ribbon, and feel that the loyalty to France above all else, which is properly the highest honor and greatest glory to a Frenchman, might easily be on occasion the deepest dishonor to an independent American journalist.

ITALY, GERMANY IN PLEA FOR ARMS CUT

Join Britain in Stand Before the League as Opposed to French 'Security' Demands

Geneva, Sept. 16 (AP)—The voices of two neighbors of France—Italy and Germany—today were joined with those of British Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and others in a plea for drastic measures toward disarmament without waiting for security.

Signor Scialoja, spokesman of the Italian government, declared in the League of Nations assembly today that Italy still is ready for a disarmament agreement which will reduce armaments to the lowest level consistent with national safety.

Following upon the address of the Italian statesman, German Foreign Minister Julius Curtius announced his own agreement with the principle enunciated by his British and Italian colleagues, in their appeal for the execution of that provision of the Versailles treaty which commits the victorious powers in the World War to enter an agreement with Germany on the reduction of armaments.

Two secret plans followed in a few minutes, one piloted by Lieut. Roland Hicks and carrying Honor Ferns, French mechanic, and another carrying Field Inspector Murray Hall and Maj. George Witten.

CURLEY STILL IN MOOD FOR SPANKING

In eleven-hour radio appeals to the voters to nominate John F. Fitzgerald for governor, Mayor James Curley today repeated his threat to spank Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic State committee.

He denied striking either Donahue or Gael Coakley, son of Daniel H. Coakley, independent candidate for United States senator. In the fracas that climaxed the Democratic in-party battle at WNA radio station in Hotel Blackmer last night.

The Coakleys, father and son, the latter insisting that the Mayor "gave him the lines," announced they had deferred any court action against the Mayor until tomorrow, "after he has taken his medicine at the polls today."

Mayor Curley, when he burst into the broadcasting studio at the conclusion of Donahue's address last night, was chiefly incensed by the State chairman's reference to Curley's refusal to campaign outside of Boston on behalf of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, he told his listeners today.

"I didn't go out of town. There was a place I should be. I was at that place. The wretched comedy show was more important to me than my own at that time," said the Mayor.

"When he said that reference I stayed."

"But I didn't strike him. Nobody assaults little children like Mr. Donahue. He is too small to notice."

"I told him that I would spank him if he ever again made reference to something near and dear to me that has no place in politics. And I will."

In asking the voters to ignore both Ely and Cummings, he referred to the latter as "mediocre ability" and to Ely as "capable and competent, but beyond consideration because of his associations."

At the Copley Square Hotel Gael Coakley, in bad gave the following version of the fracas at the radio station:

"We were in the broadcast studio when Mayor Curley and his crowd invaded the room and started for Donahue. Frank was standing near the piano when the Mayor reached him. I jumped between them."

"He gave me the lines. I staggered and he headed for Donahue, saying, 'I'll punch you.'"

"In an instant the room was in confusion and there was so much mulling it was hard to see what anybody did."

Donahue and I started to leave the room and there was a great deal of pushing. Donahue, of out before I did. As I was passing along an entryway somebody hit me on the ear from behind. I couldn't see who it was."

Donahue, while support of Ely and Cummings, was the demand that Fitzgerald be nominated and then allowed to withdraw has resulted in a bitter in-party struggle, had no comment upon the fracas.

'Barber John,' Who Claimed He Found Dempsey, Dead

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—John the barber, 57, boxer, fight promoter and one of Broadway's best known figures died yesterday in Lebanon hospital from illness caused by an infected finger. He was John J. Reiser, who claimed he discovered Jack Dempsey, saying: "I bought Dempsey his first suit of clothes. He didn't weigh 160 pounds then. His toes were sticking out of his shoes. I bought him everything from underwear to collar buttons, and what did he do? He ran out on me."

Reiser sued Dempsey for breach of contract and the case was settled out of court. John began as a boxer himself, but later turned promoter. Abe Attell was one of his protégés.

One of Broadway's show places was John's barber shop, where amid Versailles, mirrors, green marble basins and near-jade fittings worked 25 manicurists, whom John said, had been recruited from the "pick" of Broadway beauty choruses, ready to sing or dance for the patrons as well as groom their fingerhats.

Partly Alden Fete at Races Colorful

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL. Universal Service Special Cable. Saint-Jean-de-Luz, France, Sept. 15.—Here is one part of France where the international fashionables who travel about Europe on motor cars find it difficult to be sure of doing just the thing at the proper time.

That annual social feature, the yacht race for the King of Spain's gold cup, has brought together here a colorful, glittering throng. The floating picture of the yacht of Madame Virginia Heriot, the Commodore Jenkins, and the Baron de Rothschild are anchored off shore.

TRANSITION UPHELD. The town itself is fully upholding its tradition of mobish indifference which has prevailed hereabouts ever since Louis XIV.—Le Grand—chose it as the scene of his marriage to the charming Infanta Maria Theresa of Spain.

One of the most colorful of recent events occurred the other evening in a pajama club at the Pergola d'Amour, where each pajama-clad feminine figure had her male escort in tennis whites.

INTEREST IN WEDDING. Of course, much of the interest centered about the wedding of Mr. Elizabeth Bortone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Reding Bortone of New York and Oyster Bay, and Vladimir Boultov, son-in-law of the household to the Duke of Oldenburg in Russia.

Elizabeth was formerly the wife of Snowden A. Farnsworth, while her present husband is well-known in America, where he was first head of the Russian Red Cross Mission during the war, and later engaged in business.

Minnekahda Docks Steamship Minnekahda arrived at New York yesterday afternoon from London and Boulogne with 701 passengers, among whom were Prof. C. J. Thomsen and Rev. A. C. Olenlund, of Boston.

Lawrence Balloon Found in Florida

Lawrence, Sept. 16.—Alfred E. Greenwood, 16-year-old local high school freshman, whose hobby is aviation, was the recipient today of a letter from Frank Richardson of Tampa, Fla., in which the local youth was informed that a miniature dirigible balloon which he himself constructed and which he set down here on August 25, had descended to terra firma on September 4 in the Southern city, and had been picked up by Richardson.

Auxiliary of Legion Busy

And now is the time to say a few short words about those seven women who comprise the executive board of the American Legion Auxiliary for the 1930 national convention; those few women who have functioned quietly and unceasingly since last April, laying the foundation for the most pretentious national convention ever staged by the auxiliary.

To them has fallen the lot of organizing the work so that not too much was placed upon the shoulders of any one woman, but the duties of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Under the direction of the national convention chairman, Mrs. Franklin Lee Bishop, former state president, the executive committee met once a week, planning for rounds of entertainment and sessions in which the delegates are especially interested. The Hotel Statler is convention headquarters.

Miss Anne M. Manion, the vice-chairman of the committee and department president, heads the group, which includes Miss Adelaide Fitzgerald of Hopkinton, national vice-president, and the auxiliary in charge of the eastern area, Mrs. Margaret Wade Woburn, secretary; Mrs. Mark Murill, Belmont, former department secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Alice K. Phaneuf, Indian Orchard, and Miss May L. Macomber, Rockland.

Within their scope rests the placing of the various social functions, the allotting of tickets for those events and the scheduling of hours so that no two groups of auxiliary delegates may find themselves trying to occupy the same committee room at the same hour.

General Federation Announces Makeup of House Committee

The house committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs has been announced. It is composed of Mrs. Florence Dible, Johnston, Pa., chairman; Mrs. East W. Charles, Mosby, Md.; Mrs. Mary E. Williams, H. Beeson, Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. J. A. Biele, Blackwelder, Okla.; and Mrs. Joshua Hudson, Marinette, Wis.

Helping Hand Group Announce Plans to Found Scholarship

At the board of directors meeting of the Ladies Helping Hand Auxiliary, held yesterday at the Home for Jewish Children, which institution the auxiliary supports and maintains, it was voted to subsidize a young man through four years of schooling at Boston University, entailing an investment of $4500. Of such deeds is the auxiliary log book replete.

Mrs. Samuel Altman, president, presided over the session. The executive board also voted to sponsor an extensive program of renovation and repair and improvement for Camp Embo, at Alfred, Me., the funds for which they expect to get by conducting a social function at the home within a month.

In the interim an enlarged committee is making plans for the life membership banquet to take place Nov. 3. Mrs. Emil Friedman, chairman of the after-care committee, reporting for her group, told of concentrated plans now under way for work with the children after they leave the home. A sort of Big Brother and Big Sister idea.

Meeting of State Federation to Take Place at Worcester

The autumn meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs takes place this week at Worcester with the Worcester Woman's Club as hostess.

Luxurious Ladies Love Velvet

By ANN ARDEN.

(ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

MANY of us have come to think of velvet as a fall perennial—but it has a very definite place in the scheme of things, for the whole trend of fashion demands luxurious and beautiful clothes, and velvet is more able to interpret this feeling than velvet.

VELVET SUITS have returned to favor, and with a pastel accent they are doubly chic and becoming.

THE THREE-PIECE suit pictured is of dark-brown transparent velvet—the skirt is scalloped to deep hip yoke, and again above the belt to achieve a high waistline. The blouse is of satin, tulle edged, with short sleeves, and a draped neckline, over gilet of cream lace. A sleeveless bodice of the velvet reaches to the hips. The hat wears its crown from the Société des Modes de Paris, its cleverly manipulated brim turned back across front and left side, dipping sharply on right, where it is accented by stirred mousseline in shell pink, forming a large petal flower.

FLOWERS, feathers and bows are returning to favor in our newly feminized styles. Even the college girl is going in for femininity in her formal afternoon clothes, and since a feminine and individual mode makes ladies of us all, from the debutante to the dowager, and since luxury is the fashion this autumn, we prophesy one of the bigger and better velvet seasons. The cowl neckline is of such importance that it cannot be overlooked. It is at the top of the list of style details this season, grace frequently accented by a clip pin of brilliants.

IN LINE the new mode is the same graceful and dignified embodiment of lovely femininity that it has been for the past two seasons. No radical changes in silhouette are evident. The tunic skirt and dolman sleeve are smart revivals that have not been with us for some time, but in general the main trends of summer carry over into fall.

LONGER SKIRTS. A slightly modified line. The bolero theme. Lingerie touches. Belts. Bust-line crapes. Bustle cloths for coats. Step-in pumps. Crystal jewelry. Large handbags. Brown hosiery. Off-the-face hats. These are highlights of the fall mode.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs and fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American, please mention Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

One Man's Cures for Unemployment Evils

Editor Boston American:

If the following statements were made law, as well as some other social evils would be remedied:

(1) No poor couple shall have the right to have any children.

(2) No couple shall have the right to have more than two children.

(3) No couple shall have the right to have a child without the consent of the government.

(4) No couple shall have the right to have a child who has been rigidly examined by special government authorities and declared physically and mentally fit for parenthood.

(5) No person should be allowed to own more than $1,000. Any money above that amount should be given to the government for distribution amongst the needy and unemployed.

If the first statement were a law there wouldn't be so many poor.

If the second were a law there wouldn't be too many people.

If the third were a law the government would have a chance to control the population, and thereby adjust it to the public demand.

If the fourth were a law there wouldn't be any people handicapped by being born with the mental or physical defects of poor parents.

The fifth statement might appear to be communistic, but I can see how any person could easily spend $1,000,000 in a lifetime.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF MANKIND.

Let the Factories Do Some "Buying Now"

Editor Boston American:

In a recent cartoon Nelson Harding pictures the return of Mr. Prosperity from his long vacation with full confidence and renewed energy. It is precisely what all of us are wishing and longing for. But something must be done in order to bring back the happy days.

While the men out of work worry about their bread and butter, the workers are in constant fear of losing their jobs and are compelled to postpone the purchase of things not immediately needed.

Capital and labor should join hands and share responsibility. If the workers should pledge to spend a few extra dollars in the factories should pledge to employ a few extra workers every week to resume operations at usual capacity. The workers spend money to buy goods to stimulate production, and the factories spend money to buy labor to stimulate consumption. If the workers agree to buy more "buy now and spend properly" a strong wave of confidence would sweep across the country.

Thus the keynote of improving general business conditions is co-operation between producers and consumers for mutual benefit. Why, then, should not factories, as well as workers, at once join the Boston Evening American "Buy Now Club?"

WILLIAM L. SIEN.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

During this thirtieth year it is well to recall the treatment often dealt out to preachers' wives in the early history of Massachusetts.

Bishop Edward Bass, first Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, who was also rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newburyport, had to fight in the midst of the objections to his wife, because she wore such up-to-date garments.

So keen was the objection to his better half that he taxed the congregation in Newburyport by preaching from that text of the Bible:

"Barely the Lord is not in this place, for they will slay me for my wife's sake."

After that silence was golden in the church.

Blame Late Changes for Flunking at Teachers' College

Editor Boston American:

I am one of those girls who "flunked" the Teachers' College examinations. Yet I took exams for a private college and came off with flying colors. College board exams are harder than the Teachers' College exams.

Figure it out for yourself. Here's what I want to say: I feel perfectly qualified to say it. Neither teaching nor being in blame for the failures. Teachers' College examinations, however made the changes late term are solely responsible.

Some girls got so disgusted at the last minute changes that they continued with the T. C. course because it was too late (the senior was almost half over) to change their course and did not even try the exams. Many left. Others applied to outside normal schools.

Had the changes come a year earlier—in the junior year—girls could have switched to the commercial course, but coming when they did it was impossible. Only one who went through it and was obliged to take extra exams.

affected by the changes can realize how tough it was. The senior class just didn't know where it was at. Half the girls didn't know until a few weeks before the exams just how many they would have to take. I'm telling you we were ready to rue. And then the crowning feature of it all came on the day of the first exam, when they told us that even if we did pass we might not be admitted! That's a nice thing to tell a girl after she's been plugging for four years at a college which makes her ineligible for another college because subjects required by the other college are not included in the T. C. course.

Every other year 250 girls have been admitted. This year only 120. Some jump! But that is exactly what was desired. They wanted to—they told us they were cutting the number down. Then why all the fuss about the failures? The classes of 30 aren't any dumber than the other classes. Had the 250 girls who took the exams passed, only 120 would have been admitted. It was known everywhere that any few would be admitted, because of the hundreds of girls waiting to be placed.

But don't blame us or our teachers. Blame those last minute changes.

And anyone with an atom of common sense can see that only because of nervousness and fear could a girl who received a diploma from high school that "Latin had something to do with slavery but did not finish it and turned it over to Washington."

Mr. Editor, please be kind and print this, the students' side of the story, even if I don't sign my name, because it took courage enough to write it, let alone sign it. I think it's a nice thing to tell a girl after she's been plugging for four years at a college which makes her ineligible for another college because subjects required by the other college are not included in the T. C. course.

TYPICAL GIRL SEARCH ENDS

The Typical New England Girl contest is over and heavy bears the hearts of the hundreds of young women who entered this unusual quest conducted by the Boston Evening American.

All are anxious until the ONE young woman is selected, but the task begins today for that part of the contest and when it ends, Miss Typical New England will be presented to a curious public.

Five judges, notable citizens of New England, have been asked to sit on the board of inquiry, and their job starts today.

Until that time the Typical New England Girl Editor extends thanks to each of the hundreds of applicants, with many words of praise for their particular charms and accomplishments. He need not repeat that the job is a difficult one—the selection of the Typical New England Girl; but it is a job abounding in joys for many are the attributes of the young women of New England; many are their distinct possessions and charms.

Would that they could all go to Paris, but alas—the free trip to the magnificence of the French capital are for one and one alone.

IN THE FACE of counter attractions, both ear splitting and annoying, Arthur Hammerstein's "Sweet Adeline" made port safely at the Colonial last night. For a time there was battle royal between the performance on the stage and Tercentenary fireworks that popped steadily on the Common. Art came out of the fray triumphant—honestly earned. It was a great show.

BACK TO THE gay nineties you were gently conducted — to Schmidt's beer garden in Hollywood.

Hoffman House bar and to other spots of happy memory. It was like growing again; like striding over forgotten paths to lively tunes, with fun and frolic taking the full share of the night's toll. A pretty love story won in Nicholas Young sent sympathy for Adèle Schaeffer and her disjuncted romance. Oscar Haunmerstein, 2nd, was responsible for the narrative for the melodies that sprinkled it. And each turned in a good job.

HAVING EXCELLENT material upon which to test their talents there was little wonder that Mr. Hammerstein's gallery of players found the going easy and the response easy. Helen Morgan, whose tear kissed voice gave "Show Boat" its greatest charm, again proved herself the mistress of repressed misery. There was a beautiful stature to her audience and last night, even while contesting every word and gesture with exploding bombs across the way, there was no sign of faltering stage stature to depend the heart throbs of the performance and she came through brilliantly.

THIS LIFE story of Addie Schmidt, as it moved from the Ziebkoben beer garden through the mysteries and perils of night life in Manhattan to its happy conclusion in fame and champagne, was frequently interrupted by Gene Franklin and Charlie Butterworth. These were Mr. Hammerstein's chief funsters. They toiled faithfully and were amply rewarded. Miss Franklin, in one interpolated number, fairly raised her audience from its chairs. Mr. Butterworth plodded through the evening in the simple minded fashion of a man who is not known. With fine encouragement from Beatrice Kay, he supplied "Sweet Adeline" with twitters and giggles to match every chapter of its interesting recital.

NONE OF the elements that give character and glow to musical comedy had been overlooked in "Sweet Adeline." Sentiment, melodrama and the richest of rollicking fun kept pace with Jerome Kern's magnificent score. It was like old times in the theater—the good old times.

LEAD IN 'BEAU IDEAL'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
 Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
 "Carnegie Hall by Universal Service"
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15—The movies are pathetically eager to discover new talent. So eager are producers to get just the right type that newcomers more than ever are given opportunities. Lester Vail, a young stage actor without five minutes seven centuries, has been chosen by Herbert Brown to take the place in "Beau Ideal" left vacant by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Mr. Brenon, who has a penchant for new faces, has in his time discovered such headliners as Richard B. Rhythms, Betty Bronson,  deals with women in prison and is a feminine version of "The Big House," "The Last Mile" and others of the same kind.

He'll Lyell, Mary Jane, and Nita Aubert, sons in Vail a future star. Why not, with an unknown like John Wayne getting all the breaks in "The Trail of the Red Fox." PRINCESS CHARMING" now the Colonial's stage, presents Anne Aubert, French star.

original songs. Long, with a few laughs, he is in store for a good time.

Leda Moran Wynn appears in the first 15 minutes of the film, singing "Up Parents." If that isn't enough, she is followed with a remarkable rendition of "The House of the Rising Sun," a song popularized by the Animals, Hester, Jule and Charlie.

That romance factor is behind the story of the film, which is a keynote in the talking picture. The Duke of Burgundy interprets the role of a malevolent prince, while the Duke of York, Robert Ames, cast as radio technician.

Byron, rich, young and handsome, and with a penchant for the ladies, is the one who tells little things for the young lovers in spite of complications, all of which are solved in the end.

Two song numbers, "nothing to do but love the day away" and "Whisper You Love Me," are included.

WHAT IS THERE to keep Warner Brothers from using the extra-verse expression "Bad Women" in the title of their new picture? The National has already used it in the title, "The Bad Man." It's only a change of gender and the matter of singular and plural. Walter Huston, who gave such a fine performance in "The Bad Man," will play the leading role in "Bad Women."

Walter Huston If Mr. Huston is the "bad man," he is all his combinations. He is also due at Columbia this week in the role of the "criminal Code" that Arthur Byron created on the part in "The Bad Man." Boley have already been an-

... upon us. Now to the question of how to play at the picture. The picture is a playhouse jump to show the audience the "bad man" is a "bad woman."

Betty Bonner Taylor was the "bad man" in the picture. The Jeanie MacLean Pherson-Parson was the "bad woman" and delivered and, as we said the other day, the "bad woman" of the Streets. Michael Arden, who played the "bad man" in the picture, will play the "bad woman" in the picture.

JOYCE COAD and her mother are the "bad woman" in the picture. They are busy, but not too busy to get a glimpse of her plump little face and her eyes. Joyce is now 15, and she has always been a "bad woman" in the picture. She has the most outstanding one of that of Lillian in "The Secret of the Old House."

EDNA COVEY

This week's vaudeville bill at the Scollay is well-balanced and most entertaining. Edna Covey, remembered as the balletista who comique starred in Ziegfeld Folies, tops the show. As Ziegfeld said: "Miss Covey is a class act by herself," and yesterday's audience certainly showed appreciation. A pretentious show is built around Miss Covey, featuring Bennie Weston, who are excellent comic dancers, the O'Connor Twins, who do some difficult dance steps while playing saxophones, and Berrie Stevenson and his cadets, who furnish some fine musical specialties.

ALTHEA BARNES

her acting corresponds with her beauty, you may expect to hear of Joyce, who is just now playing a part in "Grease Paint," Hal Roach comedy.

Dave Gould's champion "socialists" who accuse him of having their "Sing Smotherly, Simple" and "Kitchenette Parade."

Farnell and Florence and Sol Brilliant and Company provide laughs with their choice of material, and O'Brien and Hewitt lived up to their billing. Clifford and Gresham are splendid in handling this speedy show. "Manslaughter" with beautiful Claudette Colbert is the screen feature.

STATE

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

YOU CAN TEE UP, or tee-bee, at Low's State this week. On screen, as the big feature, is the golfing film, "Love in the Rough," adapted from the stage play, "Spring Fever." The fun is rather good, and the chance for laughter is big, thanks to the work of Benny Rubin, of our own city of Chelsea whereabouts, and to J. C. Nugent.

The film deals with the ups and downs of one Kelly, not the celebrated founder Kelly pool, but supposedly a great golfer. Fortunately for him, he gets fired from his job in a big store. His former boss happens to be a hole-in-one enthusiast. Kelly has been inducted into the ex-employer's club, and thus is able to win him the prize. His sweetheart happens to be the wife of a millionaire. They were married in the past. Things happen that way in the novel, and the conclusion is a happy one. Kelly and his sweetheart did come upon the screen for the first time in the picture, and it wasn't Kelly. Happiness—their own. And they were blessed. And they were pleased to live happily ever after, for the most glorious of reasons.

SUBERT—"Prison Charming," romantic operetta. The cast includes Jane Aubert, Victor Moore, Raymond Welburn and Douglas Dumbrille. To be reviewed later.

CAPTOR OF BIG WHALE IN HUB

One of the interesting visitors for Tenterden Week is Captain David G. Dedrick, chief of the whaling fleet of the Pacific Whaling Company, and noted particularly as the man who brought Admiral Byrd's ship "The City of New York" across from Norway to New York and supervised its preparation for the Arctic expedition.

Incidentally, it was Capt. Dedrick who was in charge of the whaling ship that made the kill of "Alma," the largest whale ever landed in America, and which is now in Boston on an educational tour being sponsored by the Pacific. Thousands walked through the exhibition car on the 15. & A. tracks alongside the Mechanics building yesterday and viewed the levitation.

Interviewed at the Boston office of the Pacific Co. in the Chamber of Commerce building yesterday, Capt. Dedrick recalled that he had nearly lost his life in landing of "Alma." As the monster was being dragged over the side of the ship one of the chains fastened to the lashing fell off the levitation broke loose and a side swinging blow knocked Capt. Dedrick over the side of a catwalk and into the whirling surf below. Half unconscious, he hung onto a raft until members of the crew reached him and dragged him into a small boat.

"Alma," weighing 68 tons, was sighted about 30 miles off the Catalina Islands. The first harpoon was fired too far and only struck the whale's back. After it tore at a rate of 40 miles an hour, pulling the massive boat along, though it was a toy ship, blood streaming from the water, and the line played out with record breaking speed to avoid having it snap. Turning, diving, leaping, the whale kept the crew at their posts for more than 18 hours before the boat could get close enough to fire the second torpedo near the brain.

When the sea beast was finally secured to the docks of the Pacific Whaling Co., officials decided that, owing to its tremendous size and weight it might be advisable to send it out as an exhibit to the principal cities of the country. Before being loaded in, and over 8000 gallons of embalming fluid poured into the glass carcases. Then a special platform was constructed, and the whale placed aboard, together with a whaling gun, samples of other equipment used in the operations, and, to top it off, a giant octopus, or giant fish.

FROM THE START the exhibition proved an unusual success, and in all the principal cities of the country thousands have been attracted to view at first hand one of the most colossal of all samples of sea life. After the whale is shown in a few more cities, it is to be presented to the government for preservation in one of the national museums. Capt. Dedrick is an uncle of Bert Dedrick, who was pilot of Admiral Byrd on both his North and South Pole flights. The captain has followed the sea ever since he was a lad of 15, and during the war was commander of a Norwegian ammunition ship chartered to deliver ammunition to the allies. His tale of dozens of narrow escapes from submarines and mines during those hectic days. For the past 10 years he has been an American resident, maintaining a home in Groton, Ct.

WAR ALL FUN AT ORPHEUM

War in its funny angles—and the picture proves there are many of them—is the theme of Buster Keaton's newest talking comedy, "Dough Boys." This week at Orpheum. The picture hasn't a dull moment in it, with laughs and thrills, thrills and laughs, and a love story in between.

At the head of the vaudeville bill are those famous dancing stars, Harry Roy and Edna May. They pleased yesterday's audience with their repertoire of steps. The May was a bit with her clever burlesque of a student at simultaneous dancing and singing classes. Watson and Cohan walked off with the comedy honors of the bill in a 15-minute act of repartee. Ray Shannon and Company had the only act on the bill. Arthur Ball in a program of songs and Jack Hanley in a humorous monologue, are also on the bill.

The short features this week include Charlie Chase's newest comedy, "Dollars and Sense," and Hearst Metrophone News.

WOMAN AND RESCUER SAVED FROM DROWNING IN FLAX POND, LYNN

2 MEN BALK DEATH TRY IN WATER

Breaks Hold of First Rescuer, Then Fights the Attempts of Two Others to Save Her

Two persons were rescued in Flax Pond, Lynn, today after Joseph Kohn of Derby st., Salem, had gone to the rescue of Miss Helen Shea, 36, of President st., Lynn, who had attempted suicide.

Miss Shea, said to be subject to hallucinations, jumped from Flax pond wharf and Kohn went after her. She struggled with the rescuer and broke his hold, leaving him exhausted.

Joseph Cummings of Beverly, at work at a nearby iron house, saw the struggle and hurried to aid, as did George Conrad, a fireman of Essex st.

Cummings dove after Miss Shea, who had come under, brought her ashore and she was revived. Mrs. Conrad had helped Kohn to safety.

NEW NAVY YARD PUT OPPOSED

The charge that President Hoover's orders have been violated by officials of the Navy Department in discharging workmen at the Boston Navy Yard today was repudiated by Congressman Underhill today.

In a telegram to Acting Secretary of the Navy John D. Ford, Underhill expressed his surprise and shock that the department at this crisis in unemployment should take the drastic step with regard to the Boston yard.

Congressman Underhill said he understood the department has cut approximately $200,000 from the appropriation to complete work on the Memphis, resulting in the discharge of a number of workmen.

"In addition, I understand," Congressman Underhill wired, "the department is curtailing other appropriations for Boston and that further discharges are to be effected."

Birthday

Boston's 300th birthday, tomorrow, is the 78th birthday of Rev. John F. Cummins, beloved pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Southdale, and the occasion will be celebrated appropriately by thousands of all creeds in that district.

A mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated by Fr. Cummins and it is expected that his church on Cummins highway, which is named for him, will be filled to overflowing.

Fr. Cummins was born in Charlestown in 1852, attended the grammar and high school there, then went to Boston College and afterwards to Holy Cross. He is the second oldest Holy Cross graduate. He was ordained at St. Joseph's Seminary at Troy, N. Y., in 1870.

Flies to Newport to Aid Crompton

Dr. W. Russell MacAuland of 412 Beacon st., rushed to Newport N. H., yesterday afternoon in a special plane to attend Joseph Crompton, local manager of the Curtis-Wright Flying Service, who had been dangerously injured in an automobile accident.

He left the airport in a plane owned by the same company piloted by Joseph K. Barter and reached Newport, more than 100 miles away, in an hour.

Misfortune after misfortune follows Lina Baquette, former Felles beauty, since she played the acrobatic girl in the film that was to make her a great movie star. A page story next section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

FR. CUMMINS 78 TOMORROW

Boston's 300th birthday, tomorrow, is the 78th birthday of Rev. John F. Cummins, beloved pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Southdale, and the occasion will be celebrated appropriately by thousands of all creeds in that district.

A mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated by Fr. Cummins and it is expected that his church on Cummins highway, which is named for him, will be filled to overflowing.

Fr. Cummins was born in Charlestown in 1852, attended the grammar and high school there, then went to Boston College and afterwards to Holy Cross. He is the second oldest Holy Cross graduate. He was ordained at St. Joseph's Seminary at Troy, N. Y., in 1870.

Flies to Newport to Aid Crompton

Dr. W. Russell MacAuland of 412 Beacon st., rushed to Newport N. H., yesterday afternoon in a special plane to attend Joseph Crompton, local manager of the Curtis-Wright Flying Service, who had been dangerously injured in an automobile accident.

He left the airport in a plane owned by the same company piloted by Joseph K. Barter and reached Newport, more than 100 miles away, in an hour.

Misfortune after misfortune follows Lina Baquette, former Felles beauty, since she played the acrobatic girl in the film that was to make her a great movie star. A page story next section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

REV. JOHN F. CUMMINS will be 78 years old tomorrow, the day on which Boston celebrates its 300th anniversary.

100 DANCING TEACHERS HERE Mercury Reaches 90; Humidity Also High

If they could return for the celebration commemorating their accomplishments, the Puritan fathers might stand aghast this week in the vicinity of the Young Women's Christian Association headquarters in Stuart st.

For at the Y. W. C. A. today, 100 dancing teachers of Greater Boston, a majority in costumes that would have left the Puritans wondering what they were doing in the 17th century, were gathered for a four-day meeting under the auspices of the Boston Dancing Teachers' Club.

The latest steps in modern, classic and ballet dancing will be demonstrated to the teachers by noted instructors, including Leo Kehl, Ivan Paraset, Alexander Ketchewski, Oscar Duryea and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keen.

Miss Harriet James is chairman of the Boston club committee in charge of the instruction sessions.

Jumping eight degrees in two hours, the official temperature reached 90 at 4 o'clock today, exceeding yesterday's maximum by three degrees.

Despite an east wind which earlier in the day had forced the mercury down from 84 at 11 o'clock to 82 at noon, temperature soared in the afternoon.

With a mark of 82 at 5 o'clock, the mercury jumped to 89 at 5, and an hour later had touched 90.

The high temperature was accompanied by an abnormal humidity of 82 per cent, which wilted collars and sent thousands of people flocking to the beaches.

Possible relief was seen in the prediction of thunder storms for tonight and perhaps tomorrow, followed by fair and cooler weather with moderate winds, shifting from southwest to west.

Starting at 73 at 1 a. m., the official mercury reached 84 at 11 o'clock, six degrees warmer than yesterday at the same hour. Then the east wind got in its work, and there was a drop to 82, at which figure the mercury remained until 2 p. m., when it shot upward to 89.

Further Study of Bacon Bequest to Employees

Announcement of the 1931 auto insurance rates, which will be lower than the tentative figures over which a protest arose, will be made within a few days, Commissioner Morton L. Brown said today.

Unable to determine the permanent 1931 schedule of rates in season for promulgation yesterday, the date scheduled, Commissioner Brown postponed announcement for a day or two.

That there will be some reductions from the 1931 tentative schedule made public two weeks ago is declared officially.

Yesterday Commissioner Brown had a 40-minute conference with Chairman Charles P. Howard of the State commission on administration and finance. Governor Allen was in Springfield attending the Eastern States Exposition and it is understood that Mr. Howard acted for him in advising with Commissioner Brown.

It is felt that Boston, Revere and Chelsea, with possibly other places that were particularly hard hit by the tentative schedule, will find their rate lower in the permanent schedule.

Although it has been commonly understood that September 15, yesterday, was the last day on which the rates could be promulgated and furthermore that such date is specified in the statute, Atty-Gen. Joseph E. Warner has ruled that the action may be deferred if it is in the interest of the public.

Valler of 38 Grandfield ave., Roxbury, on Albany st., near Massachusetts ave.

Fake Tickets Out for Parade a Ruse

Counterfeit tickets for the big tercentenary parade here tomorrow were given out last night at political rallies, particularly in Dorchester, by stamping political candidates, according to reports made to parade officials.

It was pointed out that the recipients of the tickets might be induced to cast their ballot for the candidates today, and find out tomorrow that the tickets were bogus, but after the polls closed.

Parish Meeting

A parish meeting of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Cambridge, was held last night at the parish meeting hall. Plans for the erection of the new church were discussed.

Women's Christian Association building in Stuart st. Miss Perry is one of the most accomplished and comely of the large group, who are under skillful tutelage of Leo Kehl and other experts in ballet and classical dancing. The Misses Gladly, Dol-

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Billa:
Do you know that there are a million ducking hearts, a million lovely girls and a million Cinderella dreamers of dark Gilbert?

point at issue is whether Richards

"Just because you have a badge
